The Savoury Side

Coconut and Kaffir Lime Chicken

Our exploration begins with a familiar flavour and scent. Citrus Hystrix, aka Kaffir lime leaves are used to give our coconut chicken a lovely fragrance.

Smoked Mackerel and Turmeric

It's the newest addition to our garden, appearing in March 2016. This subtle yet tasty root has been dried and made into powder and mixed with smoked mackerel and finished with sour green apple.

Avocado, Cucumber and Smoked Pepper

The story begins from one gardener's lunch box, turning into a five foot tall plant. Paired with fresh cucumber and smoked pepper, our avocado tree is becoming our favourite.

Burford Brown Egg, Watercress and Dill

Dill, closely related to fennel, is grown on the rooftop of the Guildhall School of Music and Drama. It gives life and freshness to our egg and watercress.

Lemon Thyme and Date Palm Scones

Phoenix Dactylifera (date palm) is grown in abundance in our garden. Mixed together with the ever-so fresh lemon thyme, dazzles our traditional scones into the 21st century.

The Sweet Tooth

Orange and Lavender Cake

It's too warm for the lavender in the conservatory, but it can be found on the Lakeside. The flowers are a valuable source of pollen for our bees. Here it is mixed with honey and orange, then baked.

Rosemary and Papaya Tart

You can smell the rosemary from miles away. So floral and powerful in flavour, we encase it to maximise the Rosmarinus officinalis taste.

Coffee and Banana Éclair

Our gardeners have been successfully growing bananas for the last five years. Paired together with coffee that has been growing for 30 years, the two is a lovely match.

Pear and Cardamom loaf

The ancient Egyptians used the seeds as a tooth cleaner whilst the Greeks and Romans used it as a perfume. We love the aroma and decided to bake it with pears.

Lemon Macaroons

The lemon trees in the conservatory prefer to be outside. The very sour meets sweet in our finale -macaroons.

Organic loose leaf tea or cafetiere coffee

Choose from English breakfast tea or an herbal infusion.
