Home	Man Ray Chess board and Man Ray Chess pieces	N	19194/19195	£250.00	Chess was much more than a pastime for the Surrealist artist Man Ray. By his own admission he was a third rate player, but chess provided him with something much more than a way to while away a few hours. It helped him form the building blocks on which his art was based and shared his passion with artists Francis Picabia and Marcel Duchamp. In this set, Man Ray translates traditional chess pieces into pure geometric forms abandoning all classical and figurative characteristics used to define the pieces. Instead, he composed them of pure Euclidean geometric “ideal forms” - cube, sphere, pyramid and cone. Dadaist that he was, one discordant form was interjected into the set. He based the form of the Knight on a found object in his studio, the head scroll of a violin.	Chess set: Material: Beech wood with clear lacquered and black painted finishes. Wool felt pads under each piece. Dimensions: Bishop: H: 2.75”, King & Queen: H: 3.25”, Knight: H: 2”, Rook and Pawn: H: 1.4” Chess board: Material: Veneered wood with clear lacquered and black painted finishes; wool felt base.
